Magic Medicine Facts

SAMPLE DOCUMENT - fictitious content for an AWS End User Messaging RCS demo. Not medical advice. Not a real medication guide. No real product exists.

Why members love it

Magic Medicine is the little tablet with the big personality. Nine out of ten imaginary members report a pleasant sense of wonderment within the hour, and a lingering awe that lasts right through to the next imaginary refill.

The general idea

One tablet, twice a day, with or without a snack. Store it somewhere cool, dry and slightly mysterious. Keep the cap on. Keep the wonder in.

Things that may happen

Mild whimsy. Occasional humming. A sudden urge to describe a sunset in unnecessary detail. None of these are real, because none of this is real.

Questions?

Tap Talk to Pharmacist in the message thread and a person will answer. Bring your prescription number; we will not ask for it over the message.

Why this document is allowed in the message thread: it is the same file for every member. It contains no patient name, address, prescriber or directions, so nothing about any individual crosses the carrier network when it is sent. Anything that does identify a member goes through the secure webview instead.
